Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Monday 08 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning more unsettled and windy this week.

This Evening and Tonight:
Many southern parts of England and Wales will have clear spells and another frost, whilst many other areas will be rather cloudy with rain or drizzle in places.

Tuesday:
Rather cloudy with best of sunny intervals in the south and east. Some rain in the north and west, turning heavier and persistent in the northwest later along with gales.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Rain will continue through much of Wednesday, heaviest in the west. Becoming very windy overnight and into Thursday with frequent heavy, blustery showers. Similar on Friday, although less windy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.